Notice,

To Wheelwrights, Blacksmiths, Tanners, Harness-Makers, Saddlers, Hatters, &c.

BELIEVING as I do, that PROVIDENCE, at Fairfax Court-House, would be a suitable situation for mechanics of the above description, I offer to such, lots in that village for sale, on ground rent for ever—will build and furnish suitable houses and rent to them, or furnish brick to them to build with; and invite any who feel disposed to settle there, for the purpose of carrying on their respective trades to advantage, to come and view the situation. It is a very public place, the centre of the county, where the superior and county courts are held. The Little River Turnpike Road passes through this little town from Alexandria westward, and where all the public meetings for the county, &c. are held; and where trades of the aforesaid description being carried on, would meet with great encouragement, and be a public convenience to the country around. No situation can be more healthy—good water, and fire wood cheap. Mechanics of the above description must generally depend on the country people, farmers, &c. to be their customers. Here they would be in a convenient situation for all the purposes. I invite a call, and view for themselves. I would also furnish lots adjacent, from one to five acres each, for cultivation, pasture, &c. on moderate terms; all of which can be shown, and terms made known, on application to RICH'D. RATCLIFFE.

LETTERS FROM TOWN.
LETTER III.

The wind is high, the weather cold,
'Tis rather damp without, I'm told,
And I am tir'd of late of being merry;
Besides all which I've a month's mind
(Which means that I am seriously inclin'd)
To try my genius at an Allegory
I've therefore pull'd my boots off for to night, [ndite
And mean, with much grave caution to
Somethihg that's fanciful and terse,
And written in a regular kind of verse.
For I'm not deaf to criticism,
And ladies say they hate my jolting rhmthm;
Neither for beaux or poets is it meet
To have such awkward, disproprotion'd feet;
(A lady's pun, which you, like me, had prais'd, [gazd.
On the moist lips that spoke it, had you
I'll try "to build my lofty rhyme" compactly, [actly.
And hope the sense will fit to it ex-

FASHION,—AN ALLEGORY.

Once on a time,—as Dandy legends tell,—
There liv'd a dame, whom sober folks tho't frantic; [well,
But wiser ones declar'd, who knew her
She had not sense enough to grow romantic.
However that might be, she cut a swell,
And capers play'd so ludicrous and antic, [shame,
That thinking people cried "it was a
And fashion was a fool," so went her name.

Sometimes in summer she was seen to wear [garment;
Some cumbrous, heavy and close fitting
Anon in winter went so nude and bare,
That cautious parents, thinking there was harm meant, [care:
Bethought them of their daughters to take
But they were wrong, as I dare make averment;
For as for that, the men would soon get us'd
To Dian's drapery, were it introduc'd.

At last her petty tricks and small caprices
Began to outrage all sense, rhyme and reason,
And quiet men, who on her lesser vices
Had look'd with laughter for a little season, misses,
Seeing her ways were caught by other
Were glad to hear she had resolved to seize on
A region for herself, where she her pleasure [leisure.
Might use, and play her pretty pranks at
This spot, which was y'clept the world of fashion, [seen it,
'Tis said by reverend writers who h ve
(For as for me, I am not of race patrician,
And had I liv'd then, couldn't have got in it)
Was a place worthy of all admiration,
And happy they, whose lucky feet coul'd win it! [cious,
Because I've said its mistress was capri-
Giving least heed oft to the most ambitious.

Her dwelling was a structure rich and rare
Shut from vulgarians by a golden portal,
(And few but wealthy bodies enter'd there)
Except perhaps some cringing bowing mortal [fair,
Who could descend to speak dame fashion
And her obsequious imps and minions court all; [riage,
Some to have stol'n in by a lucky mar-
But more drove in by mounting their own carriage.

To tell the truth, from all that I can hear,
(Tho' this of course is but my own persuasion) appear,
This wayward dame, call'd fashion would
T' have rul'd like despots of some eastern nation,
Who seldom lend to worth or wit an ear,
But oft some scoundrel from the lowest station
Exalt to play their favorite for a season—
But why, 't would puzzle one to give a reason,

Within this mansion reign'd perpetual change, [months together:
Few things could there keep place two
Both dress and hangings would the dame derange, [weather,
Turning them out, half worn, to wind &
As if incited by some dire revenge
Against the smallest things—a shoe, feather;
Replacing them with those that oft look'd worse
But which were very costly to the purse.

Her minions too were still contriving oddities; [could wear,
Tight coats for instance, that no one
Corsets, huge sleeves, small capes, with some commodities
It fits not me to tell, nor you to hear.
This for rich fools may suit, but to applaud it is [dare,
More than an humble man like me would
Who am a poor mechanic sort of person,
That scarce can paper buy to write his verse on.

Like high born folks, she'd a repository
Or gallery, kept for ancient fashion solely, very
Like those in feudal mansions, where you
Merry might be, or else as melancholly,
(According as your mood was grave or airy) [folly,
To see the thousand ugly shapes that
Like Circe, or some sorceress insidious,
Has made her victims wear, to make the hideous.

Old Norman beaux whose shoe points reach'd the knee, [prehension;
Maugre the pope's and priest's stern re-
Hoop'd beauties, deck'd in whalebone majesty, [sion;
Huge as the bell of Moscow in dimen-
And belles, who from their head-dress seem'd to be
New Babels built by feminine invention,
(To their loud tongues I mean no smart allusion) sion.
There star'd on you in ludicrous confu-

The thing that seem'd most strange and reprehensible
In this capricious Lady's wide dominion,
Was that her worshippers, however sensible, pinion,
Strait lost all sober sense and sound o-
And played the fool without a cause ostensible;
And, to me, neither Atheist nor Socinian,
Is worse than one who can give up his conscience, sense.
And for the mode's sake practice non-

If fashion wore a robe (if odd the better)
Like Typhus, or some other epidemick,
It spread amongst the minions that beset her, to mimic,
Who ran with headlong haste, the dame
'Twas thought she held them by some magic fetter chymick:
Or drug'd their reason by some agent
So easily she turned them into asses
Or made them act what sound belief surpasses.

Fashion but smil'd,—and sordidness and vice, garity,
Nay, what fine folks the most abhor, vul-
To virtues metamorphos'd in a trice,
Were plac'd with worth and merit on a parity:
For fashion, tho' a goddess, has her price,
And treats with great familiarity
Those goodly persons who are known to wear a
Heavy purse, and treat with good Madeira.

The ladies who respir'd this modish air,
Spent their smooth days after a pleasant fashion [wear
They ponder'd seriously what clothes to
And read and prattled much on "la belle passion," [ty rare;
Or thrumm'd on strings or wires some dit-
But their chief joy ('tis worthy of relation) [vapour,
Was, when the weather brew'd no cloud or
To leave at their friend's doors neat bits of paper.

But this vocation they were aided in
By dapper gentlemen now nick nam'd dandies,
Born wealthy for their own or fathers' sin,
Who, having nought to do, set up grandees; [to win,
Formed in all points light female hearts
With whom for things like these, there great demand is, ['em,
But I'm inform'd no lady can withstand
When they play grooms, and sport a gig and tandem.

These Fashion liveried in breeches wide,
Tight coats that like a serpent's coil embrac'd them,
And gave a sort of stiff, yet stooping stride
And vests, in which some strong arm'd servant lac'd them, [deni'd,
And starch'd cravats that turn or bend
And like some piece of antient armour cas'd them;
Together with a bushy mass of hair,
Most like the winter mantle of a bear.

So here they lead a pleasant sort of life,
Save that each one of all around was jealous, [strife
And there arose at times some well bred
Between two rival belles or dapper fellows. [to wife,
Sometimes some gander took some goose
For love, or what—the legends do not tell us, [whether
Nor shall I, having fill'd my sheet, say
It was to link themselves or lands together.
But there is one thing I forgot to note,
That I consider quite inexplicable,
They all their tongue vernacular forgot,
Or to endure its harhness were not able,
And therefore for themselves a language wro't,
Compounded like the dialect of Babel;
With foreign phrases brought from France or Italy, [more wittily.
Which than their own, I hope, they us'd

Indigo		47 cases & ser,	do	40
Rum	do	238 punch.	do	20

And our stock on hand the 1st of this month for several of our leading imports was as follows:

Coffee about 200 tons—Sugar 4000 do—Caraccas and Trinidad Cocoa 250 sacks—Maranham do 1250 sacks—Lignia Cassia 240 cases—Bengal Cotton 1480 bales—Indiga 170 chests and seroons—Nankeens 11000 pieces—B. A. Hides (all inferior) 3340—Pepper 560 company's bales—Sumatra do 1720 bags—Jamaica Pimento 140 do—Rum 780 puncheons—Ginger 2430 sacks.

Most of our holders of Coffee shew a great anxiety to sell, and have run off large quantities within a few days—The price of this article has for some time followed the fluctuations of the English Market—The brig Ontario from Salem brought 2700 bags.

The season of greatest consumption of sugar is now at hand, but our stock is so formidable we cannot expect much improvement in price. Within the last few days I have run off about 250 boxes white Havanas for part of which I obtained 40f per br. taking a proportion of cheap and good German linens in part payment—I am in daily expectation of a cargo of yellow Havannas, besides which I am not aware of any quantity of Sugar being expected.

Rum is unusually dull—The little that was sold last month was by myself at 2¼ pr gallon for Jamaica oil proof. Whilst there is such an abundance of good Rum in market I would not recommend any New-England being sent.

Bengal Cotton Wooll is of very difficult sale; 57f has been refused for a parcel which is I believe still on hand, and for which they would now be lucky to obtain 40f per br.

B. A. Hides of good quality are scarce and wanted, and should arrive here about September.

You will observe that our Exchange on London is favorable to remitters.

Referring you to my annexed price current for further information.

I remain, dear sir,
Your most obedient servant,
GEO. MOORE."

ALEXANDRIA:
WEDNESDAY, MAY 26, 1819.

CHATAUBRIAND ON THE ENGLISH NATION.

"The English clergy are learned, hospitable and generous. They love their country and exert their powerful services in support of the laws. In spite of religious differences, they received the French emigrant clergy with true christian charity.—The university of Oxford printed, at its own expense, and distributed gratis to our poor priests, a new Latin Testament, according to the Roman version, with these words: "for the use of the Catholic clergy, exiled on account of their religion." Nothing could be more delicate or affecting. It was doubtless a beautiful spectacle for philosophy to witness, at the close of the eighteenth century, the hospitality of the English clergy towards the Catholic priests; nay further, to see them allow the public exercise of this religion, and even establish some communities. Strange vicissitude of human opinions and affairs! The cry of the Pope, the Pope! caused the revolution during the reign of Charles the 1st—and James the 2d lost his crown for protecting the Catholic religion.

They who take fright at the very name of this faith, know but very little of the human mind. They consider it such as it was in the days of fanaticism and barbarity; without reflecting that like every other institution, it assumes the character of the ages through which it passes.

The English clergy are, however, not without faults. They are too negligent with regard to their duties, and too fond of pleasure; they give too many balls, and mix too much in the gaieties. Nothing is more revolting to a stranger, than to see a young minister of religion leading a pretty woman down an English country dance.—A priest should be entirely a divine; and virtue should reign around him. He should retire into the mysterious recesses of the temple, appearing but seldom among mankind, and this for the purpose only of relieving the unhappy. It is by such conduct that the French clergy obtain our respect and confidence; whereas they would soon lose both, if we found them seated by our sides on festive occasions, and familiarizing themselves with us: if they had all the vices of the times, and were for a moment suspected of being fragile mortals like ourselves.

The English display great pomp in their religious festivals—they are even beginning to introduce paintings into their churches; having at length discovered that religion without worship is only the dream of a cold enthusiast, and that the imagination of man is a faculty which must be nourished as well as his reason.

The emigration of the French clergy has in a great degree tended to propagate these ideas; and it may be remarked that, by a natural return towards the institutions of their forefathers, the English have for some time laid the scene of their dramas and other literary works in the ages during which the Catholic religion prevailed among them. Of late, this faith has been carried to London by the exiled priests of France; and appears to the English, precisely as in their romances, through the medium of noble ruins, and powerful recollections. All the world crowded with anxiety to hear the funeral oration over a French lady, delivered by an emigrant bishop, in a stable in London.

The English church has reserved for the dead, the principal part of those honours which the Roman religion awards to them. In all the great towns, there are persons called undertakers, who manage the funerals. Sometimes you read on the signs, "Coffin-maker to the king," or "funerals performed here," as if it was a theatrical representation. It is indeed true that representatives of grief have long constituted all the marks of it, which are to be found among mankind; and when nobody is disposed to weep over the remains of the deceased, tears are bought for the occasion. The last duties, however paid to the departed, would be of a sad complexion indeed, if stripped of the marks of religion; for religion has taken root at the tomb, and the tomb cannot evade her. It is right that the voice of hope should speak from the coffin; it is right that the priest of the living God should escort the ashes of the dead to their last asylum. It may be said on such an occasion, that immortality is marching at the head of death.

COMMUNICATED.

The Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Virginia, closed its annual session at Petersburg on Saturday the 15th inst. The meeting was well attended by the clergy, and a large number of respectable and pious lay delegates. The greatest cordiality and unanimity prevailed throughout all the proceedings of the Convention, exhibiting the pleasing spectacle of many members of a large family dwelling together as brethren, having one mind and speaking the same things. The reports from the different parishes were of a very favorable nature, and manifest, that there is a rapidly growing attachment, throughout the state, to the principles of true and vital religion.

It is due to the inhabitants of Petersburg, to state, that nothing was wanting that the hospitable attentions of a polite and enlightened society could bestow, to render the visit of the various members of the convention agreeable and interesting. The overflowing congregations which attended divine service thrice a day during the sitting of the convention, are favorable indications of the zeal and interest which they feel also in the important concerns of religion.

Among several important matters transacted by the convention, "a missionary society" has been organized, for the purpose of supplying the various vacant parishes in Virginia, with ministerial services. For the satisfaction of those who may be disposed to promote this laudable object, it is thought proper here to subjoin the names of the managers, who will thankfully receive subscriptions and donations for that purpose. The same persons are also managers for "the prayer book and tract society of Virginia," viz.

The Circuit Court of the United States now in session in this city, commenced on Friday last the trial of Capt. Daniels, who stands indicted for fitting out a vessel of war in the U States, to capture the property of nations at peace with us, contrary to the law passed by Congress in 1817. After the witnesses were examined, Mr. Hoffman opened the case on the part of the United States, in an able and learned speech. On Saturday, Gen. Winder followed on the part of the traverser in a strain of continued eloquence which drew forth the admiration of the court. Mr. Pinkney then rose, and after a short exordium characterised by the dignity and splendor of oratory, stated to the court that it was unnecessary to enter into an argument on the merits of the case—for that the law of 1817—the law under which the traverser was indicted, and now under trial was no longer in existence!—it having expired by limitation in March last! We are informed by a gentleman who attended the trial, that when Mr. P. came to this part of his address, the effect (to adopt his own words) was like an unexpected shock of thunder to the whole court.

In consequence of the ground thus taken the proceedings were suspended, and the court adjourned until this morning.

S. Drew, Merchant Tailor,

Removed from Fairfax-street to the corner of King and Columbus streets, and his prices falling

RESPECTFULLY acquaints his customers and the citizens in general that he has removed as above, where he will study to give satisfaction. He has by him a small but well assorted stock of goods, which will be found on inspection to be of the best quality, the whole of which he wishes to sell low for cash, and as further inducements to purchasers he offers to cut out any goods, bought of him to any size or pattern gratis.

S. Drew aware, of the advantage a ready money business has over one where long credit is given, thinks that a distinction ought to be made in the prices in each case: and as the price of provisions are low at present, he is glad to be able to announce to those customers who will feel disposed to pay him ready money for his work, that he will reduce the price of making to them according to the present journeymen's wages; and to prevent any supposed imposition on the one hand or disatisfaction on the other he is willing to be governed by the printed regulations of prices by which the journeymen are paid in Alexandria.

N. B. Bread, flour, beef, groceries, liquors or any thing valuable taken in exchange for clothes.

Drew has this day opened a tavern in the same house, where he has laid in a supply of Philadelphia and the district porter and ale, together with liquors of the best quality, and he feels confident that he shall be able to give satisfaction to all who will please to favor him with a call.—He is fitting up his house for the accommodation of boarders, travellers, &c. and from its central situation, good beds and stabling, together with other requisites, he presumes that it will be found a convenient establishment. may 25

Gunston for Sale.

THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 16 miles below Alexandria—it is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Pohick creek, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six shad and herring fisheries, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided if requisite. This estate is level and beautifully situated, very fertile, and remarkably healthy. Plaister acts with an effect equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pensylvania.—I have used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were I to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles, on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain: being bounded on 3 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole: it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary outhouse, three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries. 120,000 bricks and 1000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both useful and ornamental, two orchards of well selected apples and peach, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land is in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (and all might,) have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The river and creeks, abound with wild fowl, particularly canvass backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, highly improved sheep, farming utensels and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the Ridge, will be taken in payment.—Letters must be addressed to me at Pohick Church, Fairfax county, Virginia.

September 4 GEORGE MASON.

Valuable Property for Sale.

THE subscriber is desirous of selling a handsomely situated farm, on Hunting creek, in Fairfax county Virginia, adjoining the Mount Vernon estate and the lands of general Thomson Mason, four miles from Alexandria, containing about 240 acres, 80 of which are in wood—40 to 50 in thriving meadow of clover and timothy—a part of the residue recently seeded with wheat and rye, and clover, last spring—the whole enclosed with a new post and rail fence.—The improvements are, a comfortable and convenient frame dwelling house and kitchen, smoke house, poultry house, granary and stables.—There is on this place a rich and productive garden, and a large body of marsh meadow, from which may be saved annually 100 tons of hay, nearly as nutricious as the best timothy or clover.—With the farm would be sold a number of very valuable horses, cows and sheep; waggon, carts, and a variety of farming utensils and household and kitchen furniture; corn, oats and rye, and 10 tons hay. Also, adjoining the one above described, a farm containing 160 acres, recently enclosed, on which is a brick house, which a trifling expense would render comfortable. The soil is excellent, and a considerable part might be easily converted into meadow.—it would be sold with the other or separately. Also, a number of valuable servants, male and female. To prevent unnecessary application, he would observe, that they will only be sold to persons residing in the District or its vicinity, and not to be carried from it. The subscriber will also sell the greater part of his household furniture, which is new and handsome. For terms of all or any part of the above property, apply to NOBLET HERBERT, esq. or 100 Dollars Reward.

IS known to have been kidnapped from a field near Germantown, between the hours of 12 and 2 o'clock, on the 30th ult. whilst at work alone, a Free Black Man, named HENRY HUDSON, aged between 21 and 22 years, of the height of five feet five inches, very black complexion and dark eyes, has a scar under his left arm, between the wrist and elbow, occasioned by the cut of an axe.

He is by occupation a farmer, a native of Kent county, in the state of Delaware, had on a blue cloth roundabout jacket, old black silk vest, corded velvet pantaloons, and a wool hat.

He is a very civil, inoffensive man, with rather a down look. There is reason to suppose that he was decoyed into a carriage, and conveyed southward.

Any information respecting him will be thankfully received. Keepers of turnpike gates, toll bridges, and taverns, are particularly requested to give such information as may be in their power.

The above reward will be cheerfully paid on conviction of the perpetrators of this flagrant outrage upon the rights of a freeborn citizen of the United States.

ROMULUS RIGGS,

AT his office, next door below Crawford's tavern, Bridge-st. Georgetown, will exchange all kinds of Bank Notes on the most reasonable terms.—All persons who may have notes on the banks of North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, would do well to call on him, as he is largely in the purchase of that kind of money, and will take it on the most reasonable terms.—Persons travelling to the Western Country may at all times get the Bank Notes of the Western Banks at a fair discount, by calling at his Office. For the information of all persons throughout the U. States, R. Riggs makes it known, that all of the Banks of the District of Columbia pay their notes on demand in specie; and it would be much to the advantage of the merchants, and trading to the South and west, to encourage the circulation of the Notes of the Banks of Georgetown, Washington and Alexandria, as it will at all times answer for remittances to the large commercial and Atlantic towns;—all persons emigrating or travelling to the westward should be very particular and take the Notes of the Banks of the District of Columbia, as they will find them the most current, there being no counterfeits on the District Banks. The Merchants' Bank of Alexandria has long since failed—all persons should be on their guard, as they will be imposed on. August 18

Charlotte Hall School.

THE board of trustees for Charlotte Hall school deem it their duty to announce to the public, the present flourishing condition of this institution. Since the introduction of the present professors, the school has rapidly progressed in the public estimation.

When Philip Briscoe, esq. was called to assume the office of Principal, there were but 27 pupils. The liberality of the State Legislature of 1817, enabled the trustees to retain his services and those of Mr. Miltimore for the classical department—the Reverend Mr. Neale H. Shaw has also been retained as professor of mathematicks, and he is aided in that department by Mr. Sweetsee, a gentleman in high estimation as a professor. Under the management of these gentlemen the school has now 95 boys; and very many applications have already been made for entrance and board. Heretofore a portion of the boys have been compelled to board at the neighboring houses at too great a distance from the school; the trustees are now making arrangements which will enable fifty boys more to be accommodated immediately at the school; so that at all times the Principal will be enabled to exercise a general superintendance over their moral deportment (to the corruption of which, the boys in this retired village have but few temptations). The board will remark to those who are unacquainted with this place, that no part of Maryland is more distinguished for its general healthiness. The price of board is only 100 dollars a year. The tuition is now but 28 dollars a year! It will be raised after August to 32 dollars—a price much lower, however, than any of the public schools of our state.

It is intended then by the trustees to select four boys (of poor and indigent parents) of promise, and to board, clothe, and educate them entirely at the expense of the institution, and afterwards to labor to procure them that station to which their talents and conduct may entitle them.

Signed, by order,

NEALE H. SHAW, Reg'r.
